Before she died she started a shoe drive to bring shoes to those in need in Haiti and we're asking your help to continue her project. Molly's family, in conjunction with Service Steel Aerospace of Tacoma where her father is general manager, is coordinating the shoe drive across the country.

Friends of the Orphans supports a network of homes for abandoned and neglected children in nine countries throughout Latin America and the Caribbean. In Haiti, programs include an orphanage that provides a permanent home to more than 350 children, the only free pediatric hospital in Haiti that serves over 30,000 children each year, and street outreach programs to provide food, water and education to children who live in the slums. In addition to the loss of life, Friends of the Orphans facilities suffered extensive damage during the earthquake. And now, they are developing new programs for children who lost their families in the quake. The need for the services they provide is now greater than ever.
